

la posada hotel

La Posada is “The last great railway hotel” designed by Architect Mary Colter for the Fred Harvey Company along the Sante Fe Railway. It was an early outpost to the natural and cultural wonders of the Grand Canyon, Monument Valley, and the Navajo and Hopi Indian reservations. La Posada is one of the few hotels of its era to survive; its revival involved restoration of some parts and reconstruction and adaptation of others. The design balances historical accuracy with the requirements of a modern hotel, all planned according to sustainable principles. Today, La Posada is one of the finest hotels and restaurants in Arizona, and has led a revival of downtown Winslow.

Kiss + Cathcart worked with the owners and restaurateurs to plan the renovation of the restaurant, bar, gift shop and lobby areas.

The Client:
Allan Affeldt
Monastery Hotels LLC

The Team:
Kiss + Cathcart, Architects

Project Details:
$1,000,000
32,400 sf
Renovated 2002

